Introduction

Chemical engineering is very vast and versatile stream that finds applications in sustainable development of several industries. Scientific research is the backbone of development of any technology and research, and is a systematic approach to gather information and to gain insight of the chosen topic. The research often faces difficulties, starting from searching recent & novel area of investigation. However, in the present scenario the direction of research in chemical engineering is driven by global economy, environmental policies & it keeps on changing with time. Therefore, the objective of this programme is to promote scientific research in order to overcome the recent challenges and foresee the opportunities in the field of Chemical engineering, Chemistry & Biotechnology by providing a global exposé through international expert. In this program the speakers are eminent researcher from different area of chemical engineering.
